

- Advertisements – Fandom Wikis, Wikipedia

Advertisements will help promote campus functions and more while also drawing in income to support website growth

- Upvote downvote system – Reddit and Chegg
- Monitored Comment Section – YouTube

These two together would create an effective way to gauge the usefulness of any documentation produced. This came to me after realizing that Chegg could use this feedback to improve their answers so well do the same.

- Sign in before submitting documentation

This will help ensure the documentation we are receiving is coming from UNO affiliates and not any outside parties. While also helping filter in documents to each of the three different groups Staff, Faculty, and Students.

- Search Tags and filter options – YouTube, NIKE.com, and other search sites etc.

These will help users find relevant information If they do not know exactly what they are looking for and for those who do this will give them a way to access that information faster.

- Current Events - Wikipedia

Help keep people informed and interested on UNO events and the world at large

- On this Day - Wikipedia

Random daily facts to entertain, intrigue, and maybe even educate

- Featured Article - Wikipedia

Featuring different articles is a good way of helping draw attention to even the most obscure facts and ensures all areas will have a spot in the limelight.